

I oppose any changes to FCC rules that allow greater concentration of ownership of broadcast media. The changes following the 1996 act resulted in worse radio, worse television, and a less well informed public. This trend is harmful to democracy and self-government. The Commission should not make this bad situation any worse by altering its ownership rules to allow for even more consolidation of ownership within and across markets.